From: Gilbert, Gary

Dear CMC Students,

The Israel Policy Forum (IPF), a major American-based organization that conducts research on and advocates for a secure, Jewish, and democratic Israel, is launching a new year-long fellowship for college students interested in gaining a better understanding of Israel and relevant security issues related to Israelis and Palestinians.

The IPF Atid Policy Fellowship is a yearlong, paid fellowship offered to undergraduate students who are passionate about Israel's future as a Jewish and democratic state, the two-state solution, Middle East policy, and building relationships with fellow students locally and nationally. Fellows will be committed to promoting nuanced, informed, policy-based discourse on the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. They will be part of an intimate national cohort of campus leaders who will learn together and support each other throughout the year while growing the IPF Atid community.

The application deadline is April 29, 2022.
