Subject: EM: Federal Intervention: Permanent Solution or Temporary Model? (4/10)

From: Salvatori Center

Join Rafael Mangual, fellow at the Manhattan Institute, tomorrow for a Friday afternoon seminar, Order or Overreach? The Case for Federal Policing.

Mangual argues that targeted federal deployments can quickly restore order and serve as a proof of concept for what effective local policing could look like. This conversation will explore whether such interventions are a necessary catalyst for reform or a risky expansion of federal power with lasting constitutional implications.
