

KECK CENTER FOR INTERNATIONAL AND STRATEGIC STUDIES

CLAREMONT MCKENNA COLLEGE

The Keck Center for International and Strategic Studies is accepting applications for its International Journalism Lab for 2024-2025. The Lab will recruit four “international journalism fellows,” who will take a required spring course (Gov. 141) in international journalism with Prof. Jones and contribute to the online journal called World Affairs-Asia Experts Forum (www.asiaexpertsforum.org), that focuses on the politics, economics, and culture of Asia and beyond.

With guidance from Prof. Appel, fellows will conduct interviews with leading policy analysts, experts and academics and publish edited transcripts of the interviews on the Forum website (www.asiaexpertsforum.org).

Each fellow will receive a stipend of $2,000 for their full-year participation in the fellowship program.

The program is open to students majoring at CMC who plan to be on campus for the full 2024-2025 academic year. Applicants for this fellowship should send in one pdf file: a resume, name of two faculty members who can serve as references, an unofficial transcript and a brief statement explaining his/her interest in this program to the KeckCenter@cmc.edu by September 11, 2024.
