Lawrence W. Gross (Anishinaabe), (founding) Chair of Native American Studies at the University of Redlands, will read from his new book, Anishinaabe Ways of Knowing and Being, (2014, Ashgate).

Professor Gross, a member of the Minnesota Chippewa Tribe (enrolled on the White Earth reservation), has degrees from the University of Minnesota (B.A.), Harvard (A.M.), and Stanford (M.A. and Ph.D.), and has published extensively on American Indian culture, spirituality, humor, and literature. A subset of his scholarship identifies American Indian pedagogy and ways of engaging both Native and non-Native students in American Indian Studies courses.
